DEMO IT Policies, Standards & Procedures

USE OF EMAIL

The following policy governs all electronic mail sent within a Group business unit, sent between business units and sites, and sent to parties outside the Group via Internet gateways.

Electronic mail constitutes a publication and is therefore a legal document.

Acceptable Usage:

- The primary purpose of the Group's e-mail systems is to facilitate and conduct Group business.
- Management recognizes that the system may be used for incidental personal purposes as well.

Business and personal mail must not violate the terms specified below:

- Using abusive or otherwise objectionable language or diagrams in either public or private messages. This includes obscene, racist or sexist messages.
- Transmitting Group proprietary information to unauthorized recipients.
- Using Group e-mail for personal profit, to conduct a personal business.
- Using Group e-mail for illegal or wrongful purposes.
- Distributing or forwarding 'junk' mail, chain letters or broadcast messages.

Privacy:

- There are no facilities for sending or receiving private or confidential messages on the Group's e-mail systems.
- There should be no expectation that messages will remain private.
- As a system provider the Group may periodically monitor e-mail.
- The monitoring may be conducted under any circumstances, including, without limitation, one or more of the following circumstances.
- If a user is absent for an extended period it may become necessary to open his/her e-mail to assist with a project or to help meet a deadline.

Demo Computer Solutions Pvt. Ltd.

- Resolve technical problems. This will be done by the mail/system administrator.
- Investigate e-mail misuse. Internal audits may be conducted into the effectiveness of and compliance with security policies and procedures.
- Court ordered. If a subpoena, search warrant or court order is issued to release e-mail information, this will be done by the mail/system administrator.

USE OF INTERNET

Internet access is provided for business purposes only. Users must restrict their use to those systems and sites that they are authorized to access as determined by management and IT policy. The use of the internet is monitored by IT and IT has the right to block access to specific sites or services that are considered not to be relevant to the business. Any activities that abuse or are in violation of the statutory IT policy will be subjected to disciplinary action and also may result in criminal or civil action.

In light of the above the following is considered misuse of the Internet:

- Downloads of large files or unauthorized software
- Accessing sites promoting games, chat-lines, audio, films, pornography, racial material, gambling and hacking or illegal materials. Using the Internet or unauthorized service suppliers to send or receive e-mails, except when diagnosing technical problems
- Excessive time spent on personal browsing.
- Downloading, displaying printing or transmission of indecent or obscene materials.
- Downloading files in violation of copyright law or licensing agreements.
- Transmittal of DEMO Design proprietary information to unauthorized individuals or organizations.
- Unauthorized use of another person's Internet access facility.
- Using the company's Internet facilities to propagate deliberately any virus, worm, Trojan horse or trap door program code.
- In chat-rooms, bulletin boards or similar facilities, revealing confidential company information, customer data, trade secrets, and any other material covered by existing company secrecy policies and procedures.
